Indiana County (PA) (Postcard History Series)

John F. Busovicki : Indiana County (PA) (Postcard History Series) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Indiana County (PA) (Postcard History Series):

1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Great book, lots of great photos, limited infoBy D. FreemanI bought this for a friend who is proud to be from Indiana County, PA and is into history. This book has a lot of great photos from the past and the photographs are clear.The reason for 4 stars is because the captions don't explain enough to be able to figure out where each photo was taken. Though many of them do. Discovering where the photos are taken has a lot of meaning to the photos.Overall, I recommend to anyone who likes history of Indiana County, PA or is a proud resident or prior resident of Indiana, PA.

Indiana County was little more than a collection of forests and sparse settlements when it was formed in 1803. At the center of the county lay the area that was to become the city of Indiana, a community built on land donated by George Clymer, a signer of the Declaration of Independence. Over the next one hundred fifty years, the county embraced the growth of numerous settlements, farms, logging operations, small businesses, and a booming coal industry that fueled the railroads of western Pennsylvania. With scenes of rolling hills and railroads, mining towns and main streets, from Rossiter to Saltsburg, Indiana County celebrates the region's bicentennial through nearly two hundred vintage postcards from the first half of the twentieth century.

About the Author John F. Busovicki, a lifelong Indiana County resident and Clymer's official town historian, has spent the last fifty years collecting images of his county. His interest in Indiana County memorabilia began in 1951, when his high school teacher Clarence D. Stephenson formed the George Clymer Historians, the group that authored The Clymer-Cherryhill Story. Busovicki is a member of the Historical and Genealogical Society of Indiana County and served as a director for six years.
