Meadville (Postcard History)

William B. Moore, Elizabeth H. Rekas : Meadville (Postcard History) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Meadville (Postcard History):

He absolutely loved the book - and his father loved it even more because he could remember good times in some of the places that were pictured. A wonderful book for any Meadvillian!0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. great book and speedy delivery!!By Noelle PageGot the book i ordered today, earlier than i expected!! im just so glad!!! the book is in good condition!! overall i am happy with the order!!!0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Four StarsBy James Sheetsvery interesting

In 1788, David Mead and nine companions established the first settlement, Cussewago, on the present site of Meadville. The town grew slowly at first, but business was stimulated by the arrival of the canal and the railroad. The young town did not want for culture as two colleges, a theater, a library, and an art association were established. By 1910, downtown business buildings crowded out residential holdouts, streets were paved and lighted by electricity, and streetcars brought people to work from the tree-lined boulevards blocks away. Within the next decade, larger industries arrived, blunting the effects of the Great Depression. After World War II, residents moved farther into the suburbs and the city center went through urban renewal, but vestiges of efforts by the early settlers remain visible among today's newer landmarks.

About the AuthorWilliam B. Moore and Elizabeth H. Rekas are both longtime residents of Meadville and have strong roots in the community. Both are active in the Crawford County Historical Society, which has graciously provided postcards from its extensive archives for this publication.
